Lord Mayors Welcome

Fáilte an Ardmhéara

Welcome one and all to the Cork St. Patrick's Festival 2023.

It is with delight I welcome all of Cork city, and our visitors this weekend, to this celebration of all that things Irish.

It's been a difficult few years, but this March we move further from the shadows of the recent past with a Festival full of celebration and joy. And what a festival it will be!

On this St. Patrick's Day we will see a record number of people participating in the parade, including the return of guest American bands after 3 years. This really will be a spectacle to behold as Cork celebrates those groups that make our city what it is today – our sports clubs, our dance schools, our international communities making Cork their home, all led out together under our national flag.

Plus, all around the city, for the whole weekend, there are so many things to do! Listed here is such a variety of options - tours, music, dance, gigs, art - even a treasure hunt for the kids. We're so lucky to have these venues at our doorstep, I hope you will support them also.

The theme of the 2023 Parade is 'A Century of Stories'. Reflecting the final year of the Decade of Centenaries, which commemorates our path to statehood. In 1923 Cork was emerging from the ashes, and grew to be this 'beautiful city, charming and pretty', and in just this past 3 years we have shown again our capacity withstand adversity and come out strong.
